GARAGE LIVING PARTNERS WITH ARCHITECTURAL DIGEST FOR SECOND ANNUAL ICONIC HOME CAMPAIGN
Garage Transformation Company Featured in Virtual Showhouse Designed by DuVäl Reynolds

This September, Garage Living, the premium garage transformation company, is taking part in Architectural Digest's 2nd annual Iconic Home. This virtual showhouse, which was designed by 12 designers and architects associated with the Black Interior Designers Network (BIDN), is open now for virtual tours.

Architectural Digest is offering digital walk throughs of the virtual home, allowing visitors to explore each of the 12 rooms. Included in this tour is the garage, designed by DuVäl Reynolds of DuVäl Design, LLC in conjunction with Garage Living.

Reynolds is a Virginia-based interior designer known for his clean and contemporary designs. His style and dramatic vision, paired with Garage Living's passion for creating spaces that address each client's specific needs, combine to re-imagine a sleek, functional garage.

The space highlights key Garage Living features, such as their exclusive cabinetry. This design-based solution allows clients to store a range of items, from seasonal décor to sports equipment, keeping the space tidy year-round. In addition, Garage Living's ability to tailor each garage to the homeowner's lifestyle is showcased through the built-in lounge area situated beside a wine cooler. With the growing interest in sustainability and demand for garages that accommodate electric vehicles, the virtual garage includes an electric car charging port, for the soon to be released Volvo C40 Recharge (pictured above), Volvo Cars' latest pure electric vehicle.

"Partnering with Architectural Digest for their Iconic Home campaign offers us the opportunity to showcase how homeowners can maximize their space and re-think the design aesthetic of the garage," says Aaron Cash, Co-Founder of Garage Living. "Garage Living was launched 16 years ago, to provide homeowners with a new way of thinking about their garages and how to integrate the garage into their home design. The space that Reynolds has designed illustrates how our core mission of creating beautiful functional, multi-purpose spaces can be re-interpreted and customized.”

The Iconic Home is free to tour as of Monday, September 27th. Visitors are invited to make a donation to the BIDN, the industry’s first non-profit organization focused on highlighting designers of colour and supporting business development opportunities for Black designers.
