SAN ANTONIO -- If you have a child with a learning disability, a new center has just opened up for them.

It's called Brain Balance Achievement Centers.

Today, parents got a tour of the facility and met with doctors who say they treat children with ADHD, autism, dyslexia and more. Doctors say they set up a program specific to the child's needs, instead of treating their conditions with medication.

"They come here 3 times a week for an hour and we work with them," said Dr. Robert Melillo, with Brain Balance Achievement Centers. "We do this and measure it until we get them to where all of their skills are basically matched to their age."

The center will hold another grand opening event Friday for interested parents.
