

PREPARING STUDENTS FOR THE FUTURE

In today's interconnected world, students have to start building their careers in high school in order to better compete in the college admissions process, for college internships and eventually full-time jobs. A study done by the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) found that 60% of surveyed employers agreed that students will need to begin to focus on their careers in high school to compete for internships and future jobs, and 90% agreed that high school internship programs can help students get into better colleges.

of our students say that the experience has transformed their professional careers

- > Our Absolute Alumni have been able to utilize the skills that they developed through their internship program to go on and work in major companies such as Google, Volkswagen, Amazon, FedEx and Wells Fargo.

"The Absolute program gave me the opportunity to continue my studies at the same time that I was interning remotely with an organization based in Paris. I also had the chance to explore my career interests and goals that I want to set for the future. The experience and knowledge that I gained during these past weeks is the start of my career life, and I am forever grateful that Absolute Internship was the one that gave it to me."

- María Eugenia, intern in Paris

"I was placed in a wonderful company in the UK and had a very educational and eye-opening experience. My placement advisor was extremely helpful during the application process and communicated everything I needed clarification. Even though it was online, which I was pretty skeptical about, I ended up learning so much more than I could've imagined, including software and skills. The fact that it was remote allowed me to be close to family and participate in other functions locally as well. The career and development workshops were awesome too!"

- Samira, intern in London

"I cannot thank Absolute Internship and my host company enough. For not only providing this opportunity but also supporting and inspiring throughout. The experience has been truly invaluable, promoting both professional and personal development. The last six weeks have shown that it truly is possible to interact globally from anywhere if only you have the motivation to seek it."

- Adele, intern in Japan
