
Employment opportunity

Analyst (market access), London

Your skills and experience

A graduate position, you will have an academic background within Healthcare Management, Health Economics or a related academic discipline (ideally at postgraduate level), and will be keen to progress your career within market access consultancy. Ideally, you may have had some experience within consultancy via an internship or similar.

Your primary role

Your research responsibilities will be to support global market access projects as part of a project team, including: secondary research, supporting primary research with Payers and Key Opinion Leaders (preparing discussion guides and moderating qualitative interviews). You will also be involved in developing sections of the project report for presentation to clients.

As you progress within the team to Senior Analyst level, you will also get greater exposure to clients, as well as mentoring more junior team members, with the ultimate aim of promotion to an Associate Consultant role, taking on responsibilities for project management.

Further information

This is a full time role (37.5 hours a week), based at our fantastic HQ location in Fulham Green, directly opposite Putney Bridge in London, which boasts free state-of-the-art gym with showers, on-site café, outdoor cinema, panoramic river views, landscaped gardens and regular social events.

About Research Partnership

We are the largest independent healthcare market research and consulting agency in the world. Trusted partner to the global pharmaceutical industry, we use our expertise and experience to deliver intelligent, tailor-made solutions.

Enjoy a successful and fulfilling career with us

researchpartnership.com/vacancies

London Lyon Singapore
New York Philadelphia San Francisco
