NEW YORK, November 17, 2020 – Mediant, a leading provider of investor communications technology and technology-enabled solutions to banks, brokers, corporations and funds, has appointed Chris Nobles, Chief Technology Officer. Nobles will oversee the ongoing expansion of Mediant’s industry-leading technology platform, which services millions of users and provides efficient and secure decision support and processing for proxies, corporate actions, class actions, prospectuses, monthly statements, trade confirms and other important communications.

“There’s no one who knows platform engineering and information technology better than Chris,” said Arthur Rosenzweig, Mediant’s Chief Executive Officer. “He is a proven leader and innovator, and well-respected by our clients.” Nobles will also join the company’s Executive Committee.

“It’s an exciting time to be at Mediant and I’m looking forward to helping drive the next phase of our growth,” said Chris Nobles. “Our focus is on continuing to build technologies that advance the industry.”

Nobles has more than 20 years of experience in managing engineering and technology in investment services. He co-led the development of the industry’s first web-based proxy voting platform at Proxy Monitor, an institutional advisory and ballot-processing firm that acquired and merged into Institutional Shareholder Services in 2001. Nobles led the development of independent investor research platforms at Gimme Credit and Credit Derivatives Research.
