What is Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR)

Corporate Social Responsibility (also known by its acronym, CSR) is an initiative or concept that organisations choose to implement in their business, and then self-regulate ongoing.

The purpose of a CSR initiative is to improve a companies environmental, social and economic impact on the world around them. This is done through actively engaging in, or investing in worthy actions, causes and philosophies.

In other words it is your company choosing to take part in positive activities that help the world around us, even when you are not obliged to. It's about giving back.

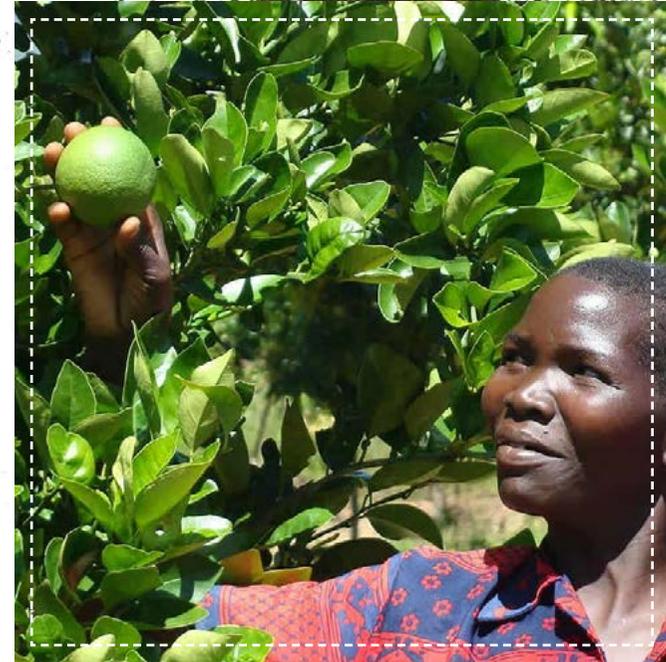

How you make a difference.

Agrofarming is a sustainable agricultural process that allows communities to create long lasting eco-systems that allow them to develop the basic opportunities we often take for granted.

Specially trained technicians work in developing countries, helping communities and farmers understand forest garden design, composting, nursery development, perma-gardening and out planting techniques.

These rural communities are then supplied with the trees needed to create sustainable eco-systems. They are then provided with ongoing support to ensure they continue to develop their skills and create permanent change.

Through a simple, secure extension added to your email platform you can create sustainable meetings. Then every participant can have a life changing tree planted in a developing country.
