APRIL IS — FINANCIAL LITERACY MONTH

Financial Literacy Month offers US a chance to identify areas of our financial lives that need the most attention.

» Know where every penny is going

No one ever outgrows the need for a budget. Budgeting is necessary at all ages, but especially so for those who live on a fixed income. Create a list of all of your monthly expenses, from groceries to toiletries to insurance costs, co-pays and medications, and track your spending throughout the month. It's important to know where all of your money is going so you can stretch every dollar during the time you need it most.

» Beware of people offering to help, especially when making purchases

Not everyone who offers to help you will have your best financial interest in mind. Be cautious of friendly strangers who make offers that sound too good to be true, or pressure you to sign a document or make a purchase immediately without adequate time for review or comparison. Always make sure your questions are answered fully. If you don't understand a financial term or document, don't sign anything until you do.

» Plan ahead

We sometimes need help managing our finances, so it's essential to plan ahead. Who will manage your bills if you are hospitalized or if you become unable to do it yourself? Think about someone whom you trust, that could help during a medical hardship, and create a plan in writing. Then, talk to your family or close friends about your plan so that your financial resources will be protected in the future when you need help.

Following these three steps will help you avoid financial exploitation during times when you may be most vulnerable. Take action today to create your plan and discuss it with someone you trust to ensure peace of mind in the future.

If you ever have any questions, reach out to us at your local branch, or at »minnwestbank.com
