

Government launches Cyber Security Public Education Campaign

His Excellency, the Governor Martyn Roper

I would like to commend the Office of Cyber and Information Security in the Ministry of Commerce, Planning and Infrastructure on the launch of the cyber security public education campaign.

Cyber security is an issue that touches all of us. It affects our children and adolescents, families, older persons and businesses, and therefore this campaign under the theme, “Better Cyber Safe than Sorry,” will help to create awareness and educate the public about the importance of cyber security.

The Cayman Islands Government continues to prioritise cybersecurity issues and have implemented effective measures so that residents and those who operate businesses here can remain confident in this jurisdiction. The Government’s imperative is to have robust and regularly tested capabilities to prevent, detect, respond and recover in the event of any cyber incident across these Islands.

But this is everybody’s responsibility and we all have to play our part.

The global and evolving nature of cyber threats means that we must work collaboratively for our mutual benefit in safeguarding our digital space. Together we can effectively enhance cybersecurity and information security across the Cayman Islands.

I want to encourage everyone to visit the website, www.gov.ky/cybersafe for tools and resources to stay safe online and to increase our resilience in the event of cyber incidents. It is better to be cyber safe, than sorry.
