BRAINWeekEnd St. Louis

BRAINWeek officially launched in May 2021 as a live virtual conference. The 3-day agenda addressed the most frequently diagnosed conditions encountered in clinical practice, with an emphasis on collaborative care among specialists and frontline practitioners. To extend the reach of our CNS education, we have launched the BRAINWeekEnd Regional Conference series. These live, in-person events will speak to conditions such as dementia, epilepsy, migraine, multiple sclerosis, and stroke, all of which require a more inclusive approach to continuing medical education.

Target audience

Internists, Neurologists, Nurse Practitioners, Pharmacists, Physician Assistants, Psychologists, Primary Care Physicians, Psychiatrists

Current clinical climate

The current estimated annual cost to American society of just nine of the most common neurological diseases is staggering, totaling $789 billion. These conditions include Alzheimer's disease and other dementias, low back pain, stroke, traumatic brain injury, migraine, epilepsy, multiple sclerosis, spinal cord injury, and Parkinson's disease.

— Gooch CL, Pracht E, Borenstein AR.

The burden of neurological disease in the United States: a summatory report and call to action. Ann Neurol. 2017;81:479-484

The BRAINWeekEnd agenda is purposely constructed for the busy clinician, delivering relevant, practical information, together with the opportunity for interaction and exchange with faculty and fellow attendees. These regional conferences have been created to streamline the clutter of information on CNS topics. Join us for CE/CME designed expressly for those clinicians involved with CNS disorders. Participants can receive 6.0 CME/CE credits as they expand their capabilities and acquire knowledge.

BRAINWeekEnd conferences are produced by PAINWeek®—the leading pain education resource for frontline practitioners.
