

As one of the NFL's all-time great competitors, Fran Tarkenton knows better than most what it takes to succeed in a competitive arena. During his 18-year NFL career, Fran played for both the New York Giants and the Minnesota Vikings, led his teams to 3 Super Bowl appearances, and was a league MVP. As the first "scrambling" quarterback, he set records for touchdowns, yards, and completions that stood for 17 years after he retired. He was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1986.

After football, Fran enjoyed a successful media career as a commentator on Monday Night Football and co-host of the popular television show "That's Incredible." Fran is also a hands-on entrepreneur who has started and built more than 25 successful companies over the past 40 years, the largest reaching revenues of $142 million. In 2003, Fran founded Tarkenton Financial to help educate retirees about retirement income planning and to support financial professionals serving retirees. The Tarkenton Companies also work closely with ADP, UGA's Terry College of Business, the National Football League, and other organizations to serve the needs of entrepreneurs nationwide.

Fran is a contributor to leading publications including The Wall Street Journal, USA Today, and Business Insider. He is the author of several books on business, leadership, and finance, including his latest, Safe & Secure: 10 Essential Steps for Seniors to Protect Against Financial Abuse (Regnery).

At age 81, Fran continues to follow his passion daily by advising and counseling businesses, identifying new opportunities, and developing innovative channels of distribution. Above all, his work embodies his guiding principle that "the #1 mission of business is to help people."
