PARTNER SUPPORT

There's no place like home 🏠 to slow the spread of the coronavirus.

Social distancing is the most effective tool we have for slowing the spread of the coronavirus. Stay home. Avoid crowds. Stay at home. If you must go out, keep your social distance - six feet, or two arm lengths apart. Wearing clothing in public. It's getting to be really hot out there. It's really hot to where this heat is, later in the year and do this the spring thing.

How did agile research help us get here?

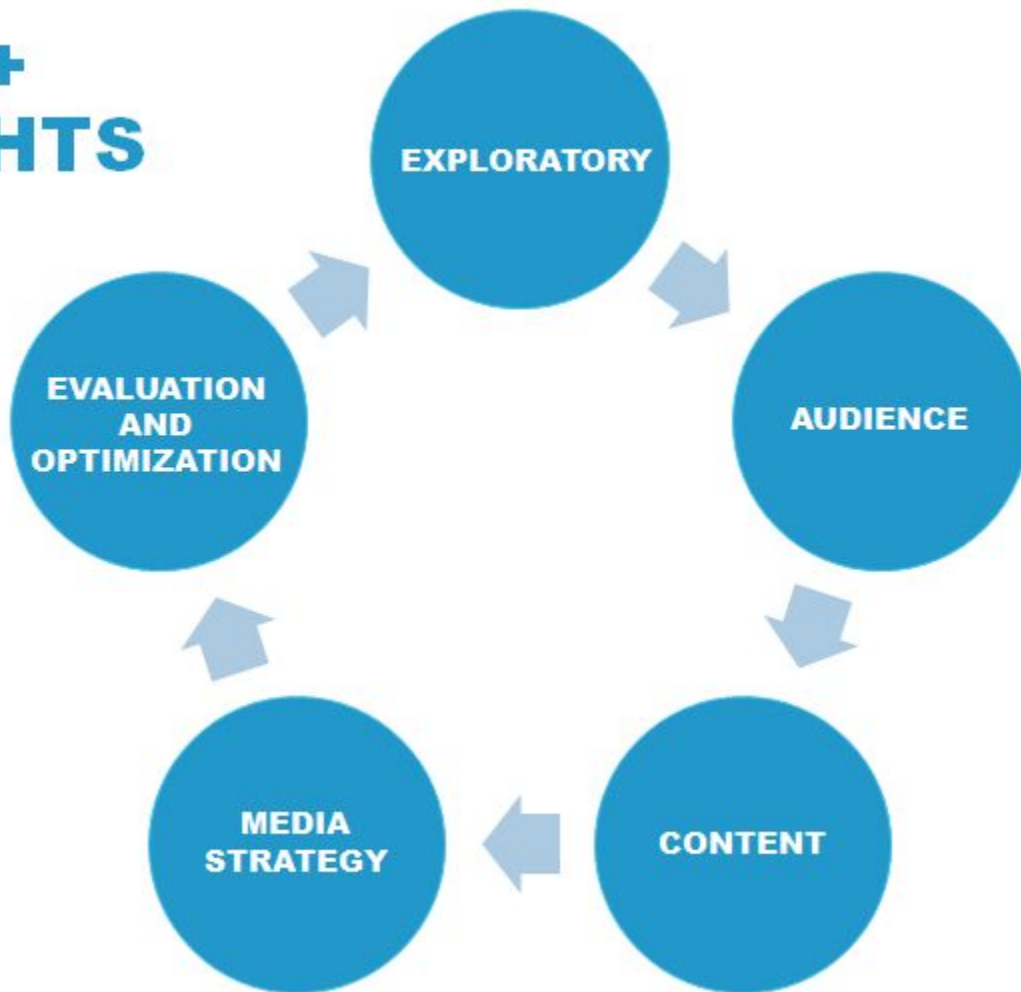

But first, what is agile research?

Agile research is NOT...

- Merely running two studies on the same topic
- Quick and dirty research
- A solution for all of your research problems

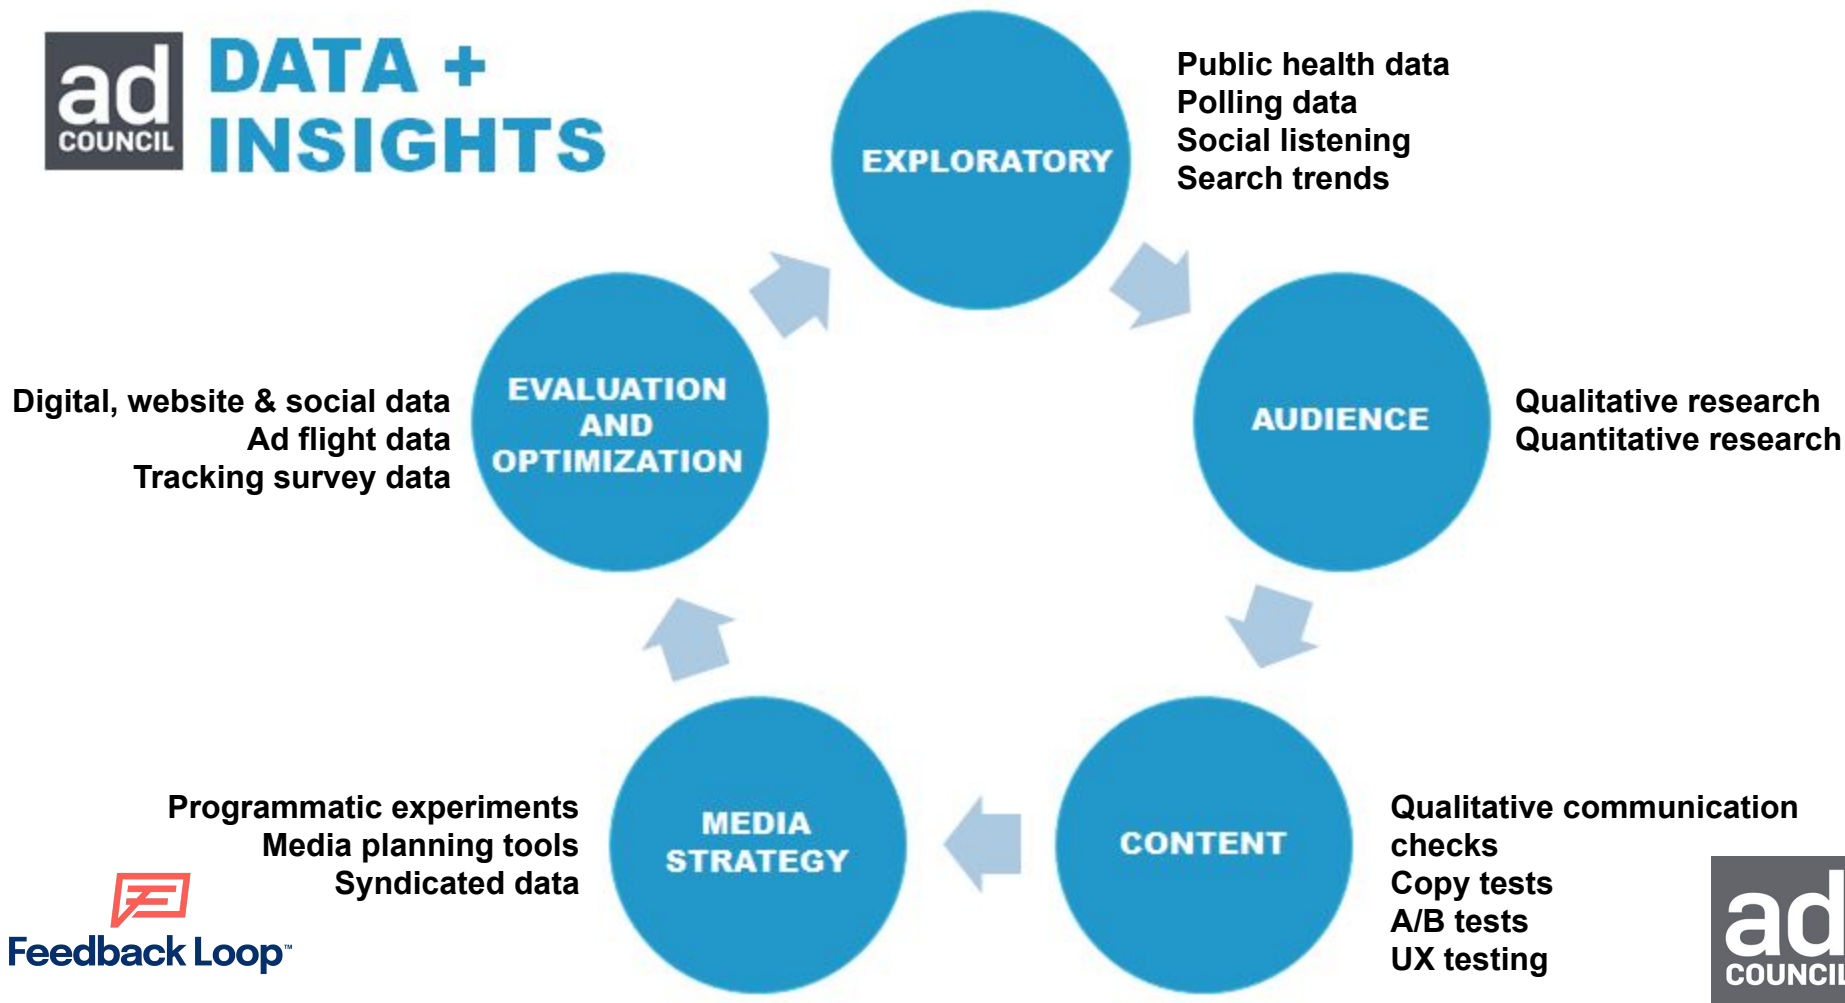

Agile research...

- Follows agile principles
- Generates feedback early and often
- Tests are focused on a key objective
- Is directly linked to decision making
- Can address multiple use cases and play nicely with other methodologies and data streams

DATA + INSIGHTS

EXPLORATORY

AUDIENCE

User discovery

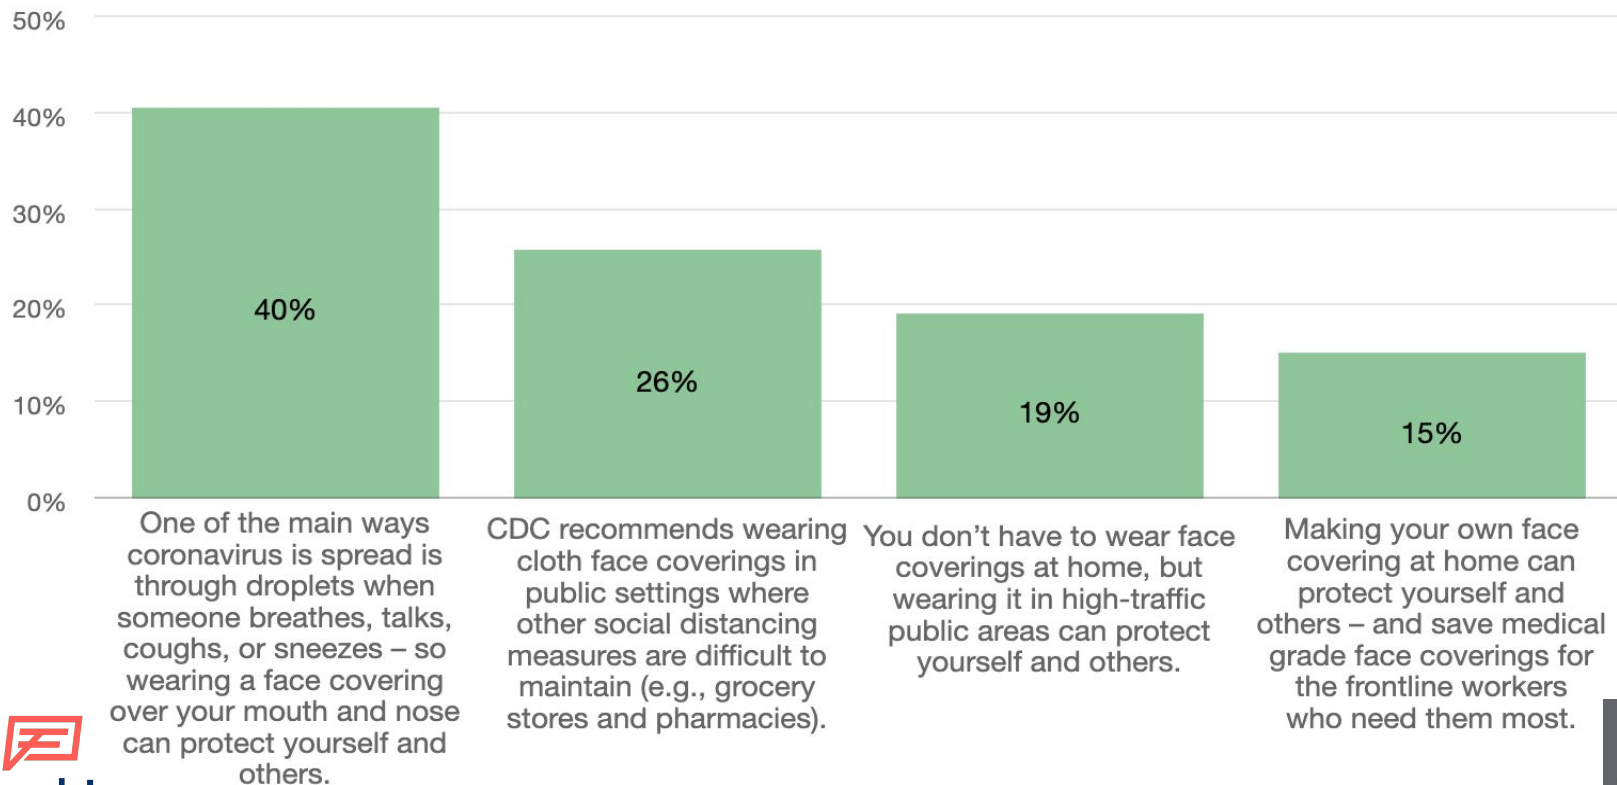

- What are the barriers to staying home, social distancing and mask wearing?
- How are people managing their chronic conditions during the pandemic?

Messaging

- What are the most motivating reasons for someone to stay home or wear a mask?
- Which statement is most relevant?

Which of the following statements MOST motivates you to wear a face covering to cover your mouth and nose while in public?

EVALUATION & OPTIMIZATION

Creative and Site Refinement

- How can we adapt this existing creative?
- How can we improve this website to be relevant during coronavirus?

Embracing Agile Research

1. Understand where agile fits
2. Foster curiosity
3. Find a few concrete use cases
4. Engage non-researchers
5. Stay focused
6. Prove value through decision making
