

FSC launches Future Ready Advice Summit in Queenstown

The Financial Services Council (FSC) has launched the Future Ready Advice Summit to be held at the Heritage Hotel, Queenstown on Thursday 17 February 2022.

Designed for the professional advice community, Future Ready follows on from the FSC's popular 2021 Get In Shape summits over the past few years.

"The advice community has made significant progress managing the regulatory change agenda, and these summits are a way to bring people together, acknowledge our collective need to reconnect, whilst supporting our struggling tourism sector," said FSC Chief Executive Richard Klipin.

"Great content drives great events and the 2022 event will again showcase New Zealand's political and regulatory leaders and explore the big issues of the day across topics of interest for FSC members and New Zealanders.

"We are working with key players behind regulatory change and peers within the advice community to deliver the Future Ready program.

"We're delighted again to be welcoming our key political stakeholders, regulatory stakeholders as well as a number of leading industry commentators."

Brand new to the programme for 2022 is 'Meet the Professionals', a choice of two sessions that will allow advisers to get up close with some of the leading lights of the NZ financial services sector (like speed dating on a topic of your choice), including experts from business fields to help develop their financial advice practice.

"The content will be future focused, relevant, reliable and it is designed to prepare advisers across the country for the financial services landscape in 2022 and beyond," said Klipin.

The Summit will also feature a masterclass to help advisers improve their business in governance, strategy and CVPs, sessions with political leaders, fast-paced TED-style talks, and a session on insights from the Queenstown Tourism sector that advisers can learn and apply in their own business.
